KYRGYZ REPUBLIC

KNEWS ALTERNATIVE ROAD NORTH - SOUTH MAY BECOME A NEW "NORTH ROUTE"

The new alternative North-South road under construction in the Naryn and Issyk-Kul oblasts with low population density in some places and minimal law-enforcement infrastructure, can be used by criminals as a new offshoot of the so-called Northern Route of Afghan drug trafficking. This was announced on September 28 by the Deputy Prime Minister Zhenish Razakov during a meeting of Coordination Committee on drug control in Osh.

"Being in close proximity with the largest producer of opiates in the world - Afghanistan, where last year a record crop of opium poppy was grown, Kyrgyzstan is in danger of an influx of cheap heroin, which can provoke not only a worsening of situation with drug trafficking, but also a criminal situation in general", - he said.

The Deputy Prime Minister also focused on new challenges and threats that have become an objective reality in the country in the past few years.

"Firstly, this is the problem of the so-called "new psychoactive substances", which are not formally drugs, but reproduce their psychoactive effect. We have to make decisions on their inclusion in the lists of controlled substances in a short time, however, new types of them appear on the market and, therefore, this work needs to be organized in a more efficient manner," said the Deputy Prime Minister. <https://knews.kg/2018/09/28/zhenish-razakov-alternativnaya-doroga-sever-yug-mozhet-stat-severnym-marshrutom-narkotrafika/>

RUSSIAN FEDERATION

RUSSIAN INTERPOL CELEBRATES 28 YEARS

On September 27, the National Central Bureau of Interpol of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of the Russian Federation celebrates its professional holiday - 28 years since the Day of creation of the Unit.

History of international police cooperation covers more than a century. The starting date for the creation of INTERPOL is considered to be the International Criminal Police Congress, held in April 1914 in Monaco. The forum was attended by representatives from 14 countries, including Russia.

In 1923, with a view to develop agreements reached at the congress, the International Criminal Police Commission was established, which received in 1946 its modern name - INTERPOL.

Today, the Organization unites 192 countries, being the second in the world in the number of member states after the UN. The Soviet Union joined Interpol in 1990. At the same time, the Interpol National Central Bureau was created within the structure of the Ministry of Internal Affairs. After the collapse of the USSR, the Russian Federation took its place in the Organization.

By joining Interpol, Russia was able to bring to the international police level a vast array of information on wanted individuals, vehicles, cultural values, invalid (fake, stolen, lost) documents and much more.

It is generally recognized that INTERPOL's secure information channels are by far the fastest and most effective. The INTERPOL I-24/7 global telecommunications system (24 hours a day, 7 days a week), to which the Russian Interpol Bureau joined as one of the first, allowed for increasing the efficiency and quality of cross-border transmission of information. Today, it is not difficult to transfer a photograph of a stolen picture or fingerprints of a wanted criminal to almost any country of the world.

Being an important link in the system of international police cooperation, the Russian INTERPOL Bureau provides information support in the fight against terrorism, transnational organized crime, human trafficking, sexual exploitation of children, drug trafficking, financial crime, illegal car business, cybercrime and contributes to effective coordinated work on the search of accused and missing persons.

Over the past years, the capabilities of the Russian law enforcement agencies in organizing searches of accused persons, cultural and historical value objects, hijacked cars and missing people have dramatically increased. Together, the police authorities around the world are detaining up to 5 thousand criminals every year. Only in the first 9 months of this year, INTERPOL personnel managed to return to Russia and to bring to criminal responsibility more than fifty wrongdoers.

Territorial divisions of the Bureau in the constituent entities of the Russian Federation (departments, divisions, groups and directions of Interpol NCB), being in constant contact with territorial law enforcement agencies directly in their region, ensure the timely announcement of persons on the international wanted list, promptly fulfilling requests received through INTERPOL from foreign law enforcement agencies, as well as the regular provision to the INTERPOL General Secretariat of information on crimes of international character in the region.

An important aspect of the NCB INTERPOL activities is ensuring participation of competent authorities of Russia in international projects and operations aimed at fighting crime. <https://crimea-news.com/incident/2018/09/27/445330.html>

LipetskMedia.ru LIPETSK JOURNALISTS LEARNED HOW TO WRITE ABOUT DRUGS

A seminar on "Regional media coverage mechanisms for the prevention of drug addiction" was held on September 27 at the initiative of the regional press, television and radio broadcasting and communications department in the administration of the Lipetsk region.

The seminar was attended by journalists from district, city and regional print and online publications, radio and television. And its main speakers were the senior operative O. Snezhkova, the Chief doctor of the regional drug dispensary M. Korostin and the chief editor of the information and analytical portal "No to Drugs" («Нет – наркотикам») A. Kolgashkin.

It was noted that regional and district media are called upon to carry out educational activities on the prevention of drug addiction, and not to be limited only to the statement of facts about crimes revealed. Given that young people are poorly informed in jurisprudence, it is necessary to constantly remind them of responsibility for anti-legal acts. For example, that you can face a life sentence for drug trafficking and up to 15 years in a colony for inclining to use psychotropic substances.

- I believe that it is not permissible to write "drug business" in the media. Because the word "business" makes associations about legal commercial activity among adolescents. Everything should be called by their names - drug crime, drug aggression, drug threat, - said O.Snezhkova.

It is also unacceptable to call drugs light or designer, eiphoretic or stimulants. Potion is a potion. And boys and girls should learn it from childhood.

According to sociologists, almost all adolescents, from the age of 14, get information about life on the Internet. Including drugs, that are sometimes openly advertised by criminal communities. Therefore, the media need to conduct counter-propaganda and preventive work with young people on social networks. And constantly remind them about where to report if the potion is still used. Publications about this should be brief, given the thinking of young people. For example, "Lipetsk, Krupskaya Street, 2. Free of charge".

The stake in information prevention of drug addiction must be made on the facts that cause negative associations among young people. For example, the use of psychotropic substances, including their one-time test, in any case puts an end to a career and makes people unsuccessful in life, ruins health, leads to premature ageing and death. http://www.lipetskmedia.ru/news/view/105701-Kak_pisat.html

TACC UN SECRETARY-GENERAL STATED THE NECESSITY OF STRENGTHENING COOPERATION IN THE FIGHT AGAINST DRUG DANGER IN THE WORLD

The world community should intensify cooperation in combating drug trafficking, as well as improve the effectiveness of assistance for addicts. This was announced by UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres on September 24 at a High-Level meeting on the fight against drug threat at the New York headquarters of the world organization.

The administrative head of the UN stressed that the world production of opium and cocaine "has never reached such a high level." As he stated, "450 thousand people die every year due to overdoses or health problems associated with drugs." Guterres stressed that "of 6 people in the world who need help with drug use, only 1 receives it." "This figure is even lower for women who use drugs," he added.

"To cope with this difficult crisis, decisive action is needed in 2 areas. First, these are tough measures against drug trafficking and against those who profit from the suffering of people," the Secretary General said. "This means that those involved in drug trafficking should be cut off from obtaining safe havens," he explained.

Furthermore, Guterres spoke in favor of "strengthening international cooperation in countering criminal groups and pursuit of their leaders", as well as "more effective exchange of intelligence data and general analysis of the entire chain of drug trafficking". Speaking of the second direction, Guterres stressed that "it is necessary to ensure that those who need treatment receive it." The Secretary General made it clear that he considers the Portuguese experience in this area to be useful.

US President Donald Trump, who spoke at the meeting, also focused on the need to intensify international cooperation in the fight against drug trafficking. "For the welfare of the population and in terms of national security, it is important that we eradicate drug addiction, stop all types of drug trafficking, with which cruel international cartels profit," Trump stated. <https://tass.ru/mezhdunarodnaya-panorama/5598601c>
