RUSSIAN FEDERATION

26.07.2018 The largest anti-drug operation to uncover a transnational organized criminal community, named the "Pyrenean break" was initiated 9 years ago. Today, the employees of the Main Directorate for Drugs Control of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Russia continue it together with the investigators of the Investigation Department of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Russia and representatives of other law enforcement agencies. The volume of drug trafficking, modes of transportation and conspiracy shocked law enforcement officers. From North Africa, drugs were delivered to Europe on small-sized sea vessels through Gibraltar. The police forces of several countries managed to establish and detain the head of the criminal international grouping, as well as 45 people entering its top. In cooperation with the police of Spain, Moldova, Belarus and other countries, a series of arrests of drug dealers across Europe are made. More than 5 tons of hashish of Moroccan origin and a particularly large consignment of synthetic drugs from Belgium, as well as weapons and ammunition were seized. Deliveries of drugs were carried out according to a clearly established scheme - each shipment was sent to Russia by 10-15 cars, mostly stuffed with briquettes with hashish - from 30 to 150 kg each. The total volumes of each batch were measured in tons. By equipping the caches, the carriers not only removed the "car's skin": technological cavities, body parts, gasoline tanks were also exposed. It was almost impossible to detect cargo without an X-ray. The places of the bookmarks were processed so that the service dogs could not detect them. In Morocco, drugs were packaged and labeled with emblems: "Porsche", "Audi" or European currency - Euro. Police forces of several countries managed to establish that the criminal community was headed by "thieves in law" Mikku, Patron, Turk, criminal authorities Bormann, Clifford, Cynya, Lika and others. The head of the criminal group was Bormann, who is also known as Oleg Prutyanu. Decapitating the drug cartel became possible on October 1, 2017, when with help of the Russian drug policemen a Moldovan counterpart in Chisinau detained the leader of the criminal community. The remaining 45 members of the criminal elite are detained in various countries of Europe and in Russian cities. In total, 20 criminal cases were instituted against Oleg Prutyanu.
